A: Hello! We will start the English lessons!

B: Hi!

A: Hello! How are you?

B: I' m good! How are you?

A: Well, I' m tired.

A (to the audience): How are you?

B: So, you are tired?

A: Yeah.

B: Why? What happened to you?

A: Well, I take many long walks these days. How about you? What are you doing these days?

B: Me? I stay at home. I played games with my son yesterday.

A: You played games with your son? That sounds fun!

A (to the audience): How about you? What are you doing these days?

B: Did you do well? By the way, Tsukuru, do you take a walk everyday?

A: Yes, I take a walk everyday. I like walking. But yesterday I had a lot of time, so I took a very long walk.

B: Wow. How many hours did you walk?

A: Well, about two hours.

B: Two hours?

A: Yes, and I found a new street. And the street was very beautiful because there were many cherry blossoms on the trees. I took a lot of pictures, too. Look! This is a picture. You should go there.

B: Yeah, this is very beautiful! I should go there! What did you do after walking?

A: After walking? Walking was really fun, but I was really tired, so I went to bed. I just wanted to sleep for a short time, but when I got up, I was really surprised.

B: Why?

A: I slept for three hours!

B: Three hours!? Oh my god!

A: I think I was really tired. After that, I went to the living room, but my mother looked really angry and she told me to do some housework. She was angry because I slept for a long time. So, I have to do some housework. I'm going to clean the bathroom today.

B: Ah, yeah, I should do some housework, too. If I don't, my wife gets angry.

A (to the audience): How about you? What are you doing these days? Do you sometimes take a walk? Do you do some housework? Please tell us more information.

B: Did you talk more? Maybe you did.

A: Hey, Asu. You played games last night, right?

B: Yes.

A: What kind of games did you play yesterday?

B: I played car racing games. My son loves car racing games, but I had never played car racing games before. So, this was the first time to play car racing games.

A: So you played car racing games? Did you enjoy the game?

B: Yes! It was really interesting. My son is good at playing car racing games, but it is difficult for me to play it, so I couldn't win.

A: You couldn't win, I like car racing games, too. I want to play with you.

B: Really?

A: Maybe I can win.

B: Oh, I should practice then! But time flies. We played the game for a long time, so my son didn't finish his homework yesterday. We have to finish homework, so I'm going to teach him math today because he is not good at math.

A: I see. He's not good at math. And your son has to finish his homework, but I think it's a good idea. I hope you have a good time with your son.

B: I hope.

A (to the audience): How about you? What are you doing these days? Do you play games these days? Did you finish homework? Let's talk again and give us more information. This is your last chance!

B: Good job!

A: Well, we had a good lesson with you. But last, please open your notebook and write down what you are doing these days. See you!

B: See you next time!
